INDUCTIVE INTERFERENCE In view of the fact that few physical problems confronting the light and power utilities of this country are more important than the inductive interference problem, the committee has gone to great length in assisting the National Committee to formulate a nation-wide plan of action which will produce a basis on which to handle this question, interest in which is becoming so active among power distributing companies and communication companies. Close cooperation has been offered by the telegraph and telephone companies which are informing themselves D. I. CONE, Pacific Telephone Telegraph Company, San Francisco-- It is a good sign when both communication interests and power companies are studying inductive interference as a general problem rather than as a series of special cases. --Northwest Electric Light and Power Association. with admirable thoroughness on every phase of the interference problem. The deplorable situation of the power companies is reflected in the requests for advice received by the committee in specific Interference cases. These reveal the immediate need for formulation of governing principles by which the merits of each case can be measured and upon which a consistent policy can gradually be developed for the guidance of the power companies. An important feature in the National situation is the growing activity of...
