Excerpt: .and management of the slaughterhouses, and the second to the administration of the inspection service. A MUNICIPAL OR CENTRAL SLAUGHTERHOUSE. It is both difficult and expensive to supervise slaughtering at a number of small, isolated establishments, each killing only a few head of animals a day, or perhaps slaughtering only once or twice or three times a week. It is therefore desirable to concentrate the slaughtering for each community into one place. There should be a public slaughterhouse under either municipal or private ownership, and in either case under official supervision. Municipal abattoirs are quite common in Europe and have been found to be an exceedingly satisfactory method of enforcing an efficient inspection, but such abattoirs are very few in this country. Aside from facilitating inspection and making it more economical, central abattoirs afford commercial advantages. They provide machinery, facilities, and-equipment such as are...
